

Resistance:

When Therapy Feels Stuck

What topic do I keep steering away from in therapy, and what makes it difficult to approach?

What am I expecting therapy to fix for me that I haven't said out loud?

What part of therapy currently frustrates me, and have I told my therapist?

If I stopped trying to give the "right" answer in therapy, what might I say instead?

